Presents Kate Purdy

Adventures in Mongolia

Friday Oct 10, 2025, 7:30 pm (eastern Time)

Topic

I love to travel, but why Mongolia?

In the west of the country lives a large group of eagle hunters whose festival takes place in the Fall--while there's the Mongolian Steppe, the Gobi Desert and the amazing nomadic way of life. Very few towns or roads, but relics of Ghengis Kahn's imperialist activities centuries ago. A unique and fascinating country.

Bio

"When I was 14 years old, I won a coloring competition, and the prize was a box camera. I haven't stopped taking photos since then (I'm 87 now). I have never had any formal photographic training but a degree in Fine Art from a British university certainly refined my aesthetic sense. I've had a variety of cameras but eventually migrated to fairly sophisticated point-and-shoot since my other passion is travel, and portability became more desirable. I now have about 62 thousand photos on my laptop and (haven't you heard it before) one day I'll go through them."
